

Frindle

By Andrew Clements

Frindle is a story about a boy named Nick who made up a new word "frindle." It is his way of saying pen. All his friends think it is fun to say, but his English teacher, Mrs. Granger, does not like it at all. She makes every kid who uses the word stay after school and write the sentence "I am writing this punishment with a frindle." Then on picture day they took their class picture with frindles in their hands. So if you like funny books then you should read Frindle.
